WORKSHOP DESCRIPTION

This workshop will focus on special issues related to potential ethical dilemmas for mental health clinicians. This is an opportunity to look at how we uphold the ethical standards of our profession, but it is not a legal workshop.

We will look at decisional models to use in evaluating ethical issues, as well as specific ethical dilemmas. Clinical examples will be utilized to highlight areas such as:

- Decisional models for evaluating ethical issues
- Technology and social media
 - Clinical/financial communications
 - Personal use and to impact on practice
- Financial issues
 - Insurance
 - Fee adjustments and Barter
 - Diagnosis issues
- Documentation—continuing dilemmas
- Therapist/case manager client boundary issues
 - Dual relationships
 - Conflicts of interest and undue influence
 - Physical contact
 - How do treatment plans effect boundary issues in doing case management
 - Differential diagnosis in determining boundaries
 - Clinical competencies effect on boundaries
 - Practitioner impairment and its potential for boundary issues
- Role modeling
 - Professionalism without being aloof
 - Therapists/case managers personal revelations in treatment of clients
- Special problems working with families and groups
- What are the limits to confidentiality?
- How do I keep records?
- Special issues of children and consents
- Whistle blowing
- Cultural competency
